

It's absurd that the same mega-corporations which actively oppose ANY regulation on the part of the FCC now want the same Commission to stifle competition in the form of satellite radio. Talk about trying to have it both ways!

Commissioner Powell, although I disagree with you on some issues, you have said many times that competition is good for the consumer. On this, we agree. To be consistent, you should allow satellite radio to grow. While this may make the NAB upset, in the long run, it will force "terrestrial" radio to compete and become better.

Please ensure that satellite radio, which many people are choosing over increasingly stale terrestrial radio, is allowed to offer local traffic, weather and any other services they want. Thank you.
